

Launch of the new project

Dear Friends,

As already explained in the last newsletter, our project in Tibet closed down last June. Despite incomprehension and deception, we did not give up and used these last months to start a new adventure on the Tibetan Plateau (Qinghai and Sichuan provinces). This is why, we launched the pilot phase of our new project in September, in close collaboration with our new local partners.

Fresh vegetable all year long

It is known that diversified diet is the base for a good general health. In this way and because of the bad nutritional status of the Tibetan rural population, KBD Fund and its locals partners started to build greenhouses in the villages. Thanks to these greenhouses, families will have, all year long, fresh vegetable rich in vitamins, a very important point for the good development of their children!

Health and hygiene promotion

These regions of the Tibetan Plateau are mainly populated by poor and uneducated families. Whether farmers or nomads, they have no notion of basic hygiene and health. To prevent the numerous sanitary problems, KBD Fund and its partners set up trainings on health education, as well as hygiene promotion. Linked to greenhouse construction, nutritional troubles are also broached and we insist on the importance to provide a diversified diet for the good growth of the children.

Our future perspectives

This first phase of the new project was launched in September. A field visit of the Belgian team will be organized in December in order to see the progress and to decide how to implement the activities at larger scale during 2018.

All this promising news and your unfailing support give us hope for the future!
